SYNOPSIS

Technical Co-operation For Development

Chaozhu Ji, Under-Secretary-General of the UN Department of Technical Co-operation for Development, says a new era of international relations and co-operation is emerging. Technical Co-operation provided to developing countries in Africa, Latin America and Asia has helped a number of them discover and utilize their natural resources. To enable the United Nations to achieve the purposes and principles envisaged in it's Charter, Mr. Ji believes that more resources should be made available to the world organization.
